Strategies For the Best Nurse Call System

Nurse call systems create efficiency for caregivers in all senior living sectors. This is especially true today, a time of chronic under-staffing affected by a competitive labor pool for frontline workers due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

With call systems, senior living operators can maintain a high standard of care while improving operations for staff. These systems serve as a vital safety net for residents who may be prone to falls or other medical needs.

As such, the value of a nurse call system today lies in its ability to be customizable and expandable, with layers of equipment that can work together seamlessly. This goes for either a wired or wireless system.

Hear from our President, Morgan Morgan

Earlier this month, Super Nurse Call had the honor of being one of the sponsors for BUILD in Chicago. This conference is hosted by Senior Housing News, the leading source of news and information in the senior housing industry. They invited executives from the industry to come network, share their experiences, and speak about their companies.

Our President, Morgan Morgan, spoke at the conference about why he started Super Nurse Call, how it's going, and his goals for the future. If you are interested in hearing him speak, check out the audio recording from his session here.
